The Republicans of Virginia are waking p. They begin to see the danger which threaless the utter ruln and destruction of their party. We do not think it can any longer be considered doubtful whether there is to be next fall a regular Republican ticket in Virginia or not. The Valley Virinion has now an ally in the Debt-Payer, ad between the two it will go hard but they will arouse the Republicans to the beriss that menace their party organization. The Valley Virginian, whose position we had considered doubtful, appears to have collsted for the war. In the following paragraph it plays the rôle of Correz-that 18, its ships and leaves no way of retreat open behind it. It must, therefore, go on to victory or defeat.

We have said "victory or defeat," but there can be no defeat for the regular Republicans inside of their own party organ-The straightouts were last year recognized by the Chicago Convention, and pitted to seats without even a protest m the MAHONE Republicans; and the right of the straightouts to send delegates to the next National Republican Convention, and to hold and control all the offices in Virginia, and to claim all the outside offices to be given to Virginians, cannot be disputed. The regulars are the regulars, and the Mahoneites belong to the regulars neither of the Democratic nor of the Republican party. Think of it. Have they any more right to send delegates to a Republican National Convention than to a Democratic National Convention? Surely not. They sent no delegates to either last year. Well they knew that their delegates would have been refused admission to either a regular Democratic or a regular Republican National Convention. Are they any better off now? By no means. The Democrats of the whole country, acting through their removes the whole country, acting through their removes the United States Senate, presentatives in the United States Senate, Dandridge, of Winchester.

Attorney-General, R. L. T. Beale, of Westmoreiand; for Lieutenant-Governor, William S. Gilman, of Richmond city; for Attorney-General, E. P. Dandridge, of Winchester. Republican National Convention would not even consider the claims of any delegates the MAHONE Republicans might send to that body; for these do not even claim to be Republicans. The claim they last set up, or set up last year, was that | C. Carrington; for Attorney-General, A. theirs was the genuine HANCOCK ticket. They dare not turn round at this early day and claim to be the genuine Republicans. However, we had no idea when we began of doing anything more than to introduce what Mr. Yosr has to say of the Republicans who train with the Mahoneites. We quote: "The northern press and many of the leading Republicans of that section extend their aid and countenance to a few political adventurers, who have ever been the bitterest enemies and the most intense revilers of the Republican party, just because, having been kicked out of the Democratic party by reason of their greed for power and place, they find no other chance of achieving the desires of their souls than by stealing Republican ideas and professing liberalism in violation of all their acts and convictions heretofore, without the manliness and courage to identify themselves with the party whose principles they assume to embrace. Their records against the vital principles of the Republican party—their loose and ruinous ideas of party—their loose and rulnous ideas of finance, commerce, and industry are ignored, and their high-sounding platitudes about liberatism accepted as sufficient cause to give them preference over Republicans who have been tried as with fire and never attempt to organize each a party entertain- petit larceny disqualifications. nistic notions about govrnment and legislation, would the Repubican press and the Republican statesmen of the North dare give them their support?

Not a bit of it, But here in Virginia, where the champions of the greenback fallacies and the most ruinous views of government integrity, who boldly declare for the repudiation of State obligations, in defiance of the State and national courts of less resort, proclaim for a tions, in defiance of the State and har tional courts of last resort, proclaim for a simulated liberalism and war upon Bour-bonism, these northern Republicans urge that the Republican party should surrender to them and support the caudidates they place in the field! We ask the northern Republican papers and the northern Republi-can statesmen whether they can stand upon such a record in the future-ignoring the regular Republican party of Virginia and giving their support to a Democratic faction which would be scouted out of existence if advocating all the beresies of greenbackism and supplementing it by a palpable, undisguised proposition to repudiate obligations whose validity has been determined by the Supreme Courts of the State and nation?"

Senator HENRY L. DAWES, of Massachusetts, bas written to a Virginia Republican, under date of June 18th, the following endersement of the proposed Republican support of the Readjuster ticket:

"It amszes me that any good and true Republican in Virginia, baving an opportunity, without compromise of any principle for which the National Republican party is contending, to secure justice in her courts and at the polls for the down-trodden and defended by the Refedence by experimental policy." defenceless by cooperation with the Read-justers, should besitate a moment."

Now, see what the Readjuster cry bas done. Here is a United States senator who is actually of the belief that the negroes of Virginia cannot "secure justice in her courts and at the polls."

The people of Virginia will not forget who they are that have thus libelled her.

The Dispatch has not yet exhausted the State Directory for nominations on the State ticket, but it will before the Convention meets if it keeps on at this rate. But it seems to us it has become monotonous, if not farcical.—State.

But what a forcible lesson do these va rious recommendations teach. Suppose w had undertaken to publish a con tion with each ticket proposed. Our friends who are such zealous advocates of one and another of the candidates proposed for the several State offices can now understand that it would be simply impossible for us to publish their communications setting forth the claims of their favorites.

We would add that our little paragraph calling a balt in the business of paming candidates was penned before we saw the above in the State.

ENOUGH.-Hold! Every man in Virginia has been named in our columns as a candidate for Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, or Altorney-General. No, not every one, but so many that we would ask our friends to reflect for awhile upon the names before Somebody wants to make our pet friend Colonel Bob Withers Attorney-General. It is true they associate with him Mr. Jones, who has some reputation as a mere county court lawyer, and Mr. Hanger, whom they say once undertook to preside over an Augusta magisterial district meeting and had moderate success; but when you come down to fine points, we mean to stand by our party, and while all our people would be glad to vote for Withers for Governor, or for President, and even for a Confederate colonel, we agree to die if we wil ever go for a doctor, M. D., for Attorney-General, and we give warning, solemn and considered warning, that in case the Vir-ginia Convention should nominate and the Virginia people elect a doctor for Attorney-General, that every justice of the peace and every constable, and perhaps the overseer of the poor in the lower magisterial district of the great county of King and SOLEMNITY. Some Republicans outside of Virginia lon't seem to know a certain fact with which don't seem to know a certain fact with which Virginia Republicans are very well acquainted—namely, that Mahone in a speech before one of the first repudiation meetings held at Richmond told his hearers that a part of the State debt should not be recognized because it was held by Yankee bondholders. Everybody who has taken the trouble to inform themselves about the facts knows that the difference in Virginia is not about West Virginia's share of the debt, but about the reconstruction debt. The real Bourbons are the Mahone people, who want to repudiate that.—Philadelphia North American (Republican).

Tree the Valley of Virginia The Political Situation.

The all-engrossing, all-absorbing, theme in this part of Virginia is the present outlook of the segregating dissevered, sundered, split-in-twain, and rapidly-dissolving poinical parties. Indeed, it begins to look as if we were soon to have, if not a political millennium, a chaotic condition of parties, out of whose destruction great good must out of whose destruction great good must ultimately come to the State. It must strike almost every intelligent, thoughtful man now, it seems to me, that some of the politi-cal parties that have been fretting their brief, ephemeral hour of existence upon the stage will soon "go under," and disappear with the execrations of the country forever. In this category, your correspondent be-lieves, will be found "the new-movement" party—the pretended "liberal" party— which affects to go for a fair settlement of the State debt, and "a free ballot and a fair count," as if poor old Virginia, with all her faults, ever had or ever thought of having anything else! It must be a rascally party indeed that would try to raise itself into recognition by such a hypocritical cry as that! The leaders of this new party are eminently and marvellously proper persons to be bellowing around for "a free ballot and a fair count," when they are known to be utterly intolerant and proscriptive to the last degree. In fact they might with truth be called "the venomous party" instead of "the liberal party," for they are ready to strike down everything and everybody that stands in the way of the attainment of their ends. But courses were a stainment of their ends. body that stands in the way of the atlainment of their ends. But your correspondent don't wish, don't intend, to pitch into this "free fight" of political parties now. He simply wants to furnish the numerous intelligent readers of the Dispatch with the political news of the day. Some of the political parties, then, as he believes and has affirmed, see trails not only 's in a 4-1 of a fix." but are truly not only "in a d-l of a fix," but are rapidly going to a worse fate than "

Nor is it only "the new-movement" party that is about to "go down." The will engulf with them in the deep to som of the ocean of the popular displeasure and contempt such of the Re blicans as are foolish enough to link their oriunes with the inevitable fate of a fore doomed faction. So with the destruction of the so-called "liberal, free-ballot, and faircount" party will follow that wing of the Republican party that goes into the abys

It is conceded here now by many Republicans and Old-Line Democrats that the next struggle in Virginia this fall will be between the two great, long-known, and powerful parties in the State-the old Democratic and the comparatively old Republican parties in Virginia. It is very certain that the old Democratic party that voted in truth and verity for Hancock and English last fall-96.000 strong-and that carried the State triumphantly for that party, will be in the field with trusted and good leaders, and thoroughly equipped for a vigorous campaign. It seems now to be equally clear that there is some life and vitality ye left in the Republican party, as a large ele-mental force of that party are kicking against the efforts of the new-movement party to absorb, and swallow, and degrade them by the coalition to which they are invited and pressed.

MAHONEITES AT WASHINGTON.

The correspondent of the Philadelphia Times says: About thirty delegates from various sections of Virginia, ostensibly representing the Republicans of all stripes in that State, are here. They came to con-suit as to the course to be adopted in the coming canyass whereby party relations might be readjusted and an harmonious front presented to the Democracy. This delegation was reported to have been chosen from every congressional district in Virginia for the express purpose of har-monizing existing difficulties. By a co-incidence which may appear somewhat singular the members of the delegation are all Readjusters. By another coincidence, they make the same report that no regular Republicans, to any alarming extent, exist in their respective neighborhoods. COMPLAINTS OF DISABLED SOLDING.

The correspondent of the Philadelphia Press states that the disabled volunteers at the Hampton (Va.) branch of the National Home complain of the management of Colonel Woodin, the superintendent. Under the law the pensions to which they are enti-tled are paid to the treasurer, to be dis-bursed for their benefit. One of their complaints is that they are paid in checks that are only received by the sutler or trader at the Home, where they are subject to overcharges. Several of the former inmates are detained in Washington by the superintendent's refusing to send their discharges, on the ground that they are deserters; so that they cannot receive the arrears due them.

THE CHOOKEDNESS OF THE DEPARTMENTS. The correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says: Hundreds of dollars are paid out every year for street-car tickets, or at least the money is charged for that item, but in view of what has been discovered by the view of what has been discovered by the Treasury Department investigation no one but the people who have the spending of the money know whether it goes for street-car tickers, cigars, or whiskey-punches. The Attorney-General, who is now figuring in the rôle of a great reformer, would doubtless discover some abuses to rectify if he would examine into the disbursements of the contingent fund of his own Department.
